

"Not knowing is an energy..."

Resonance Improvisation Course for professional musicians
30/31 May - 1 June 2020, exploratorium Berlin
with Thomas Lange, founder of Resonance Training

Improvisation is a key competency for professional musicians, which has a positive effect on all other aspects of music-making.

This course offers an improvisation concept in which the material to be played is developed from a resonant sound quality.

This kind of improvisation provides the possibility to realize a sound quality, that makes it easy for musicians to express musically.

That's what music-making is all about: How does the emotion come into the sound...?

If the musician can find the sound that makes expression easy, the often strenuous search for suitable sound material becomes an improvisation flow.

A fulfilling improvisation is coherent in itself, spontaneous, alive, responsive and expressive.

The course is addressed to professional musicians and music students of all musical styles.

The improvisation concept of Resonance Training enables musicians with various horizons of experience to play together.

The concept also integrates all kinds of improvisation. Completely free improvisation is the basis, possible are as well more bound forms, like improvising over a melody or a harmonic basis.

Please bring your own music material, if you want to improvise on certain jazz standards or specific compositions.

The sound movement training as well as various perception exercises of Resonance Training for sound quality, freedom of movement and expressiveness are integrated into the course.

We will play in all kinds of formations: solo, duo, trio, quartet, etc. and also as the whole group together...

Participation is only possible actively and is open to single players and ensembles.

The number of participants is limited to 12 musicians.
